

For rebates that lower living costs and help the environment

Incentives for households

The City of Adelaide's sustainability incentives contribute to making your building cheaper to run and an even better place to live and work.

Rebates are available for projects that help you to generate, manage and share electricity, improve your home's energy or water performance, reduce energy costs and decrease carbon emissions.

Whether you're already on the sustainable path or you're just getting started, the City of Adelaide supports initiatives that benefit owners, tenants and the environment. We're building on our foundation of thoughtful innovations with a commitment to grow our city to be sustainable for future generations.
