

Walking Trail Bunday's Paddock/Tidlangga (Park 9)

Bunday's Paddock offers bushland trails, two barbeque and picnic table areas, a sand pit and climbing walls for the community to enjoy.

cityofadelaide.com.au/easy-walks

Bunday's Paddock/Tidlangga (Park 9) history

Tidlangga translates to 'tidla root place' in Kaurna language. The tidla was known as a bulbous root eaten by the Kaurna people.

From the 1850s to 1870s, the park was used for grazing cows as well as collecting fire wood. It had a rural character, surrounded with post and wire fencing, some of which remains on the northern side.

The park was created in 1871 when Bundeys Road was opened, one of several roads constructed through the Park Lands.

Historically, this park was known as 'Bunday's Paddock' in the 1880s, referring to the location on Bundeys Road and in reference to William Bunday who was the Mayor of Adelaide from 1883–1886.

Two small loops, one 350m and one 500m.

Parking

Free parking on Mackinnon Parade and Bunday's Road

Walking surfaces

Bitumen, concrete and gravel

Mobility suitability

Suits all walking aids

Possible hazards

- Leaves and sticks on paths
- Uneven surfaces

Amenities

Shaded seating
Drinking fountain
Toilets
Play spaces and courts
Dogs on leash allowed

LEGEND

 short walking trail

 long walking trail

 Drinking fountain

 Benches

 Toilet