Community Land Management Plan

North Adelaide Post Office Complex

1. Introduction

Land owned by a council or under a council’s care, control and management is classified as community land.

Section 196 of the Local Government Act 1999 (the Act) requires a council to manage Community Land in accordance with a management plan for the land.

The Corporation of the City of Adelaide purchased the property at 166 Tynte Street North Adelaide from the Australian Postal Corporation (Australia Post) in 2011, and consequently the property is now under the care and control of the Adelaide City Council (The Council).

The property is the subject of this Community Land Management Plan (CLMP) and is referred to as the North Adelaide Post Office Complex CLMP.

Section 196 of the Act sets out the structure and content, and other matters relevant to the CLMP. The CLMP has been prepared in accordance with that Section of the Act.

Section 197 of the Act specifies the public consultation process associated with the development of the CLMP. This matter is addressed in section 4 of this document.
2. Broad description of the property and its current uses

2.1 Introduction

For the purposes of the Community Land Management Plan, the property at 166 Tynte Street North Adelaide will be referred to as the North Adelaide Post Office Complex.

Diagram 2 is an aerial photo showing the community land boundary of the Complex.

The Zone comprises two areas:

1. The building
   The building is leased to Australia Post for the purpose of operating a retail post office and other postal activities as permitted by the relevant legislation.

2. The land at the rear of the property
   The Council has designated that this land be used for community purposes that are consistent with Council’s strategic direction.

   Appropriate permit/licence documentation to formalise and manage any community tenure arrangements will be arranged as they arise.

Diagram 3 highlights the distinction between the two areas.

2.2 The building

(a) Background

The North Adelaide Post Office building and the immediately adjoining North Adelaide Institute building are included in the State Heritage Register as one item even though the two properties have separate Certificates of Title.

The two buildings were also collectively the focus of the North Adelaide Post Office and Institute Conservation Plan (Bruce Harry & associates, October 2009), and there is a Commonwealth DEWHA Conservation Management Plan registered against the property.

The North Adelaide Post Office was added to the National Heritage list in November 2011.

The North Adelaide Institute building is the subject of the Tynte Street Library and North Adelaide Community Centre Community Land Management Plan.

(b) Historical context

A summary of the origins of the two buildings is captured in the following extract from “The Heritage of the City of Adelaide: An Illustrated Guide, (1996)“

“The Post Office has occupied a prominent part in local affairs of North Adelaide. It was erected and still operates as the mail clearing house and receiving house for North Adelaide. The date of construction is 1884. The building of the adjoining Institute testifies to the capacity of Adelaide residents in the 1870s to remedy the cultural shortcomings of the colony. The foundation stone for the North Adelaide Institute was laid by the Governor Sir William Robinson on 10 September 1883. A contemporary account of the opening ceremony in 1884 described the Institute as part of a large and handsome building which would also contain a post and telegraph office.

In the Post Office there will be complete accommodation for the postal as well as for the telegraphic and telephonic departments, also for night clerks and messengers. On the upper floor are seven apartments for the resident Postmaster.

The Post and Telegraph Office was opened on 1 November 1884, the cost of the entire project being £6942. The complex consists of three main areas, the Post Office and the Institute offices which together make up the street frontage of the building, and the large hall at the rear. The facade of brick and cement dressings was a radical departure from the constructional vernacular of the time of bluestone rubble and stuccoed dressings. This may be explained by the then growing reaction to the use of bluestone and stucco coinciding with an increased availability of quality face bricks. The composition of the building is strongly derived from the classical tradition. The institute and post office sections are differentiated by setbacks, the juxtaposition of entrances, the grouping of openings and the use of classical orders and pediment to centralise the institute frontage."

Further insight into the historical significance of the two buildings is provided in the “Conservation Management Plan, North Adelaide Post Office & Institute”, Bruce Harry, October 2009.

“The North Adelaide Post Office and Institute building is an imposing historic public building. It is an uncommon example of an early multiple purpose building constructed by multiple owners. It is further remarkable that it has retained uses closely related to its original purposes from 1884 to the present day. The Post Office has been a continuous centre for communications for the North Adelaide community.

The whole building is listed as one place on the SA State Heritage Register, correctly recognising the architectural and historical values. The building has been maintained in good condition by its owners.

The building was designed in the Victorian Free Classical style by then Government Architect E.F. Woods, and its brick and decorated stucco frontage plays an important role in the streetscape of Tynte Street.

The 1884 building has retained its highest use and functional integrity, and subsequent modifications, extension of the postal service area to the rear and the conversion of the Institute to a branch of the Adelaide City Library have not diminished its integrity. The external form and fabric are of the highest significance, later additions and alterations are of no importance.”

(c) Conclusions from the Conservation Management Plan

The Conservation Management Plan concluded that “any further development of the property should respect its surviving historical and architectural significance and not interpose on the buildings’ historic setting and context.”

(d) Implications of the building’s State Heritage Status

The Conservation Management Plan concluded that “it is unlikely that any development in contravention of the SA Heritage Places Act would be permitted under the provisions of the SA Development Act and the Adelaide (City) Development Plan.”

(e) Current uses

The building known as the North Adelaide Post Office and occupying 490 sq m of the total area of 1,472 sq m of the property at 166 Tynte North Adelaide is leased to the Australian Postal Corporation.

The Australian Postal Corporation will continue to use the building as a retail post office and other postal activities.
The initial term of the lease ceases in 2016, and there are two rights of renewal each for a further five years.

The Australian Postal Corporation (as Lessee) agrees that maintenance of the premises must be undertaken having regard to the Conservation Management Plan.

2.3 The land at the rear of the property (the non-leased land)

(a) Description

The area of the land at the rear of the property accounts for 982 sq m of the total property area of approximately 1,492 sqm.

The whole of the area is bituminised with minimum landscaping. There are four enclosed sheds (described in the Conservation Management Plan as “brick garages”) on the western boundary of the land.

The land can be accessed directly from Tynte Place through double gates.

The Conservation Management Plan included the following conclusions:

- “There is scope for redevelopment of the site to the rear of the Post Office”
- “There are no restrictions on new landscaping schemes”.

(b) Current uses

Currently there is no formal use of the land.

The Tynte Street Library and the North Adelaide Community Centre use the existing sheds for storage.
